

Inventory Categories

Categories and subcategories help to organize your inventory and make it easier for your salespeople to find items in the catalog. You can create a hierarchy of categories up to four levels deep. The image below shows a furniture arrangement as an example.

The example has two top level categories, Chairs and Tables. Notice that you can repeat the names of your subcategories, but you cannot have two top-level categories with the same name.

A salesperson would drill down into each successive category to locate a particular table or chair. The image below shows how the catalog appears in the iPad app.
